

+++ Press Release +++

MedCom GmbH joins the UniteRT initiative

Jun. 14, 2023

MedCom GmbH is delighted to announce its membership in UniteRT (<https://www.unitert.org/>), an open & non-profit, robust coalition of Radiation Therapy Vendors, which aims to simplify the decision-making process for potential clients by offering first-class open and compatible software and hardware solutions.

The main principles of UniteRT Members are

- Open Competition: In order to have fair competition, clinics should have the freedom to choose products from different vendors. Members should not create deals that limit customer choice. Members should work together to solve customer issues and not involve the customer in the process
- Open Interfaces: In order for products from various vendors to work together efficiently and securely, it is important to use standard interfaces and follow established protocols. Members should be open to collaborating with vendors to achieve interoperability and be willing to share specifications and conformance statements without charge to promote interoperability
- Open Communication: Members have the freedom to use each other's brand names when discussing their own products, and they can also make statements about how their products work alongside other members' products, as long as these statements are factual and unbiased

About MedCom GmbH (www.medcom-online.de)

MedCom GmbH is a Germany-based medical innovation and OEM technology provider. Founded in 1997, MedCom offers innovative & advanced imaging-based products with an emphasis on interventional navigation & cancer treatment. MedCom modules are integrated into products for cancer irradiation, needle-assisted intervention, and ultrasound-enabled navigation offered by several world-class providers of medical instrumentation.

About UniteRT (www.unitert.org)

UniteRT is a distinguished alliance of top radiation therapy technology suppliers, committed to prioritizing patient welfare by endorsing superior, compatible RT solutions throughout the entire care process, irrespective of brand. The coalition advocates for complete customer autonomy, promoting transparent and equitable competition